023: CORPORATE CHARTERS

                    V/O
          Corporate charters. McDonald's.

                    MCDONALD'S PERSON
          For every iceberg that melts from corporate pollution, we pledge to give away ten of our brand new
          'ice-burgers' to disadvantaged teens. (Ice-burgers are cold cheeseburgers.)
               (cont.)
          We pledge to support Ronald McDonald House for patients of cancer. Now, if we can just fund centres for obesity and heart disease, that's something for all
          our customers!
               (cont.)
          We pledge to conduct rigorous sensitivity training after one of our executives invited people back to his office to check out his ball pit.

                    V/O
          Disney.

                    DISNEY PERSON
          We pledge to taking a leading role in representation in film. In fact, Disney now represents the entire movie industry.
               (cont.)
          Our "It's a Small World" ride will no longer take such a strongly controversial stance on population control.
               (cont.)
          To commemorate Walt Disney
          testifying to the House Un-American Activities Committee,
          we're black-balling Goofy.

SFX of 'gawrsh'.

                    V/O
          Tesla.

                    TESLA PERSON
          Elon will never stop posting.
               (cont.)
          Based on Elon's myriad overhyped
                 (MORE)

                    TESLA PERSON (CONT'D) schemes - from Thai rescue pods to subterranean tunnels - we're pleased to announce some other nonsense: what about a jetpack
that performs hip-hop freestyles?
Hey, we can announce anything!
        (cont.)
We pledge to terraform Mars with the stuff Elon's hair is made from.

                    V/O
Liquid Death, Water for Men.
Seriously, Google this if you missed it. It's literally "water for men", an idea so stupid that we have no choice but to be very,
very immature. Take it away,
Liquid Death CEO, Mike Cessario.

                    LIQUID PERSON
Duhhh, buhhh, derp derp derp.
        (cont.)
We pledge not eat so much doo doo.
My name Mike Cessario, I eat a big pile of doo doo.
        (cont.)
Our product is dog pee. Dog pee in my mouth, I drool it in cans. I pledge drink mucho dog pee.

                    V/O
We didn't want to do it. They left us no choice. Call your elected officials. Let's figure this out.