

021: SPOKESPERSON

SAM

You know what we need to market this show? A spokesperson!

JANET

I totally agree, Sam. That's why I've brought in some business leaders to audition for us.

SAM

Rob Drydek, tell the people what you think of Work It?

ROB

(https://youtu.be/Cj1_EPjvKvs?t=414)
It is literally the only thing that matters.

JANET

And what are you doing to promote Work It?

ROB

(https://youtu.be/Cj1_EPjvKvs?t=133)
I'm going down to get attacked by a shark.

SAM

Hmm... I'm not sure that is the kind of marketing we're looking for. Who's next?

JANET

Kay Klopovitz, who is apparently the world's most female success entrepreneur.

SAM

Did you hear our Work It saloon scene?

JANET

Where it was a parody of the wild west?

KAY

(https://youtu.be/YkEzLn_FhN8?t=117)
It was like the Wild West

SAM

Kay, we're trying to crack the Chinese market.

JANET

What have you learned in your career about breaking into the Chinese market?

KAY

(https://youtu.be/YkEzLn_FhN8?t=117)

We have the Great Wall of China to keep people out and we didn't know that much about what was behind those walls and I thought wow we could get behind those walls we could really communicate with people what if they're just like us really or not so I went on to write a master's thesis on satellite communications.

SAM

Oh, I don't think we realized you had the intelligence of a child. Our apologies. Here's a colouring book for your trouble.

KAY

(https://youtu.be/YkEzLn_FhN8?t=482)

This is great, I can do this...

JANET

Former Microsoft CEO, Steve Ballmer. You're our last hope. Please, oh please, just share a few words about what Work It means to you.

STEVE

Screaming

SAM

Well...

JANET

That might have to do.

SAM

You know, I'm starting to think that billionaires might be a little... unwell.

JANET
Grab the tranq-darts, Ballmer's loose again.
